

Endpoint Security

By Tieto Security Services

The problem

Cyber security has changed a lot due to the rise of mobile working. Today any type of endpoint can be an entry point for threats, including smartphones, tablets, laptops or servers. This shift has made the centralized network security perimeter insufficient on its own, since it can no longer protect all devices. An organisation is therefore only as secure as its endpoints.

Bring your own device

Flexible employment

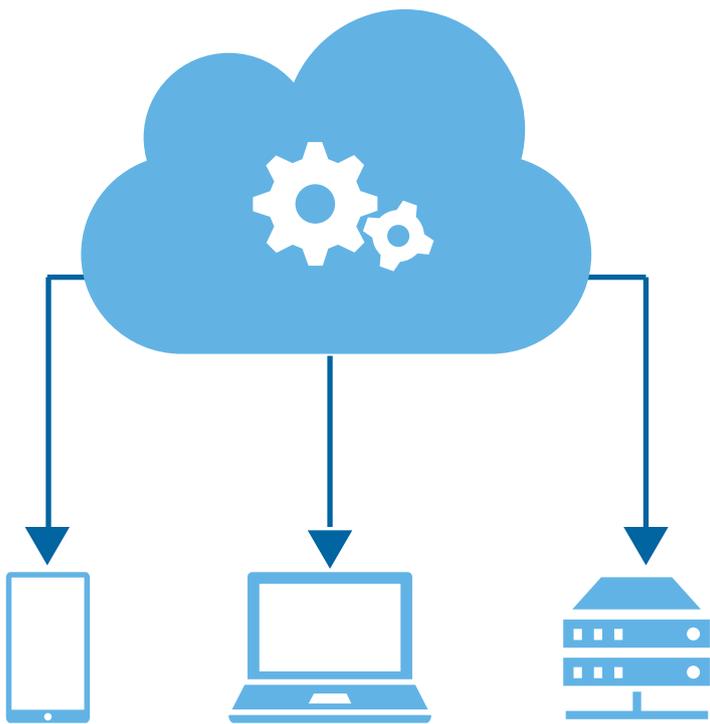

Internet of things

The future of endpoint protection is only getting more complicated. This is due to the trends in how we work. In the coming years, people will work more and more outside of the office, for multiple employers, using their own devices. In order to protect valuable data in that environment, it is therefore important to supplement the centralized network security with an endpoint protection. Each device must be able to defend itself against modern cyber threats.

tieto

Our solution

Tieto Endpoint Security provides protection against malware and other types of attacks on servers, workstations and mobile devices. Endpoint security software is installed on each device that needs to be protected. The service is provided from Tieto's cloud or our software vendors' clouds. This means that all changes and upgrades is handled easily from the cloud, so no new investments in hardware and software are needed from your side.

All your endpoints are also monitored by our 24/7 security operations staff, making sure your devices are safe. With our endpoint solution, your data is protected, even in the increasingly complex environment of the future. This lets you focus on where you excel, providing value to your customers.

Key benefits

Sleep safely at night

Tieto Security Services use cutting-edge solution from vendors in Gartner's upper right corner. Leveraging our ecosystem of leading endpoint solutions, we provide the best protection on the market, so that you can sleep safely at night!

Cheaper total cost ownership

We realize that you look for the best solution possible, at the lowest cost. Our expertise and ability to scale in cloud make it possible to reduce your costs. It also makes your security an operational expenditure, which simplifies planning and budgeting.

Tailored for your needs

Depending on your need for security, and budget, we can provide different levels of protection. As our customer, you can increase or reduce your protection anytime.

- 1
- 2
- 3

tieto